Conflict of interests

Based on a proposal prepared by the thesis advisory committee for two thesis reviewers, the Vice President for Teaching and Academic Affairs appoints these two reviewers for the review and evaluation of the dissertation.

This proposal must take into account that the reviewers are internationally recognized researchers in the relevant field who have demonstrated their expertise over the past five years through publications in high-ranking international journals, and that there are no obvious conflicts of interest.

A conflict of interest exists if the doctoral candidate has a joint publication with the reviewer, or if there is a publication from the last five years in which both the supervisor and the reviewer are listed as first author, co-first author, corresponding author, or co-corresponding author (except in the case of multicenter studies).

The proposed reviewers must in any case include one external reviewer, preferably from abroad. The supervisor cannot serve as a reviewer of the dissertation.
